9 Appendix A: List of countries 48
1 Notes

This document lists (a) every country in the envisioned V-Dem database, (b) the numeric country code assigned to each coded country (in parentheses following the country name), (c) the identities of each polity that comprises a country’s history; (d) the year coverage for which we have collected data or plan to collect data; and (e) the borders of each country, wherever this might be unclear.

Many dates are approximate due to the inconclusive nature of country histories. Note that changes in sovereignty often occur by stages, and marking these stages with specific dates can be challenging.

Coding periods do not include the ”start year” of a coding gap but do include the ”end year” of a coding gap. For example, Germany is coded 1789–1945 and 1949–2022, which means that the years 1945, 1946, 1947, and 1948 are not coded.

The assignment of country codes, and hence of a continuous ”country” in the V-Dem dataset, is somewhat arbitrary. For example, we treat Russia and the Soviet Union as the same entity, even though the geographic shape and population of that entity changes. However, since we list the polities that comprise a continuous country over time, we believe that it should be clear to users (and more importantly to our coders) what the specific geographic boundaries of that unit entail at any point in time. Furthermore, users may also disaggregate these entities following the dates provided in each entry.

1.1 ”Country”

A V-Dem country is a political unit enjoying at least some degree of functional and/or formal sovereignty.

Generally, wherever countries are formally sovereign (in international law) they are treated as countries in V-Dem. However, the recognized sovereignty of a country in international law is sometimes more extensive than the definition of a country in V-Dem. For example, China claims formal sovereignty over Hong Kong, Macau, and Taiwan (according to the PRC), while we regard these entities as separate countries because they enjoy a good deal of autonomy and their polities work differently than the PRC’s.

It is important to note that judgments concerning which territories that qualify as countries should not be interpreted as judgments about sovereign claims to disputed territories. V-Dem does not take a position on whether Taiwan is part of China, whether the Western Sahara belongs to Morocco, or whether Somaliland should be recognized as an independent state. Our decisions are based on criteria specific to this project, as explained herein.

In determining V-Dem countries, the following criteria are considered:

- Formal (legal) sovereignty, or at least claims to sovereignty (e.g., present-day Somaliland, Hungary within the Austro-Hungarian Empire).
- Continuity with a contemporary nation-state.
- Defined borders (even if imprecise or under dispute).
- A capital, e.g., a single locus of claimed sovereignty.
- A person or body that exercises executive powers — e.g., a head of state and/or head of government.
- Self-rule, at least with respect to domestic affairs.
- A distinct governing style and/or quality of democracy relative to surrounding territories.
- A distinct constitution from the surrounding territories or the wider polity the country might be subservient to.
Lacking (equal) representation at the central level of the wider polity it might be subservient to.

This means that fully sovereign nation-states as well as colonies and protectorates and semi-autonomous administrative districts may qualify as V-Dem countries if they are an "effective governance unit." Indeed, most overseas holdings of an empire are considered as countries prior to independence. It would make no sense to arrive at a single coding for the entire British Empire since there was enormous variation in governance styles across these territories — not to mention between the metropole and its colonies. That said, anyone wishing to ascertain a single score for the British Empire (or portions thereof) along some dimension of democracy may arrive at such a score by aggregating the scores of component entities. V-Dem countries are modular.

By the same token, some contiguous empires were administered in a fairly centralized fashion. Thus, the Dutch East Indies, Ruanda-Urundi, the Russian Empire, and the USSR are coded as single countries. Countries that were once part of these empires are not considered countries until their independence. Thus, Kazakhstan is understood as part of the Russian Empire (1900–1917) and then as part of the Soviet system (1917–1990). It is coded independently only from 1990. (This on-set date is chosen under the assumption that Kazakhstan was beginning to enjoy some degree of autonomy prior to full independence in 1991.) A continuous time-series measuring various aspects of democracy in Kazakhstan across the 20th century may be generated by concatenating these scores — for the Russian Empire (1900–1917), for Soviet Russia (1917–1990), and for independent Kazakhstan (1990–).

We generally code regions of an empire separately if they are governed differently from the rest of the empire or federation. Thus, Yemen is coded as a separate country from the Ottoman Empire from 1918 and onwards (though not from 1850—1918 where there was more direct rule, and Yemen is included under the "Türkiye coding") and Egypt is coded independently (as a "country") throughout the Ottoman period. Ottoman holdings in Europe and Anatolia, in contrast, are not coded independently, but included under "Türkiye". This judgment hinges on the extent to which a given territory is thought to fulfill the requirements of an "effective governance unit," as described above.

Note that the coding of a country begins at a point in time when it is judged to have become an effective governance unit or has gained international recognition — whichever comes first. Separation from a larger unit (e.g., an empire) may result in a small temporal overlap between the end of one unit and the beginning of another. Thus, former Soviet republics are coded from 1990 even though the USSR endures formally until 1991.

Where present-day countries were formerly joined as part of a larger unit we sometimes ask country experts for both countries to code the previous entity. This occurs for the following units: Rwanda-Urundi (1916–1962; Rwanda, Burundi), Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland/Central African Federation (1953–1963; Malawi, Zambia, Zimbabwe). This means that we have twice the normal complement of coders for these units. (Of course, not all of them may be able to code these historical entities, so this may not result in a large number of completed surveys.) This practice is not, however, followed for pre–1900 coding, where, for example, only the Guatemalan coder was assigned the task of coding the United Provinces of Central America (1823–1838).
2 Africa

2.1 Central Africa

2.1.1 Cameroon (108)

_Coded_: 1961–

_History:_ German colony of Kamerun (1900–1919); Cameroon under dual League of Nations mandates [under France and Britain] (1919–1946); Cameroon [converted to UN trusteeships9 (1946–1960); Republic of Cameroon [French portion] [independent state] (1960); Republic of Cameroon and British Cameroon (1960–1961); Federal Republic of Cameroon [independent state] [Republic of Cameroon merged with southern part of British Cameroons] (1961); Republic of Cameroon (1961–1972); United Republic of Cameroon (1972–1984); Republic of Cameroon (1984–).

2.1.2 Central African Republic (71)

_Coded_: 1920–

_History:_ Oubangui-Chari established as French administration [also known as Ubangi-Shari] (1903); Oubangui-Chari as part of the French Congo (1903–1906); Oubangui-Chari merged with Chad (1906); Oubangui-Chari as part of the French Congo (1906–1910); Oubangui-Chari-Tchad as part of the French Equatorial Africa [successor of French Congo] (1910–1911); Oubanghi-Chari-Tchad [part of French Equatorial Africa] under German occupation in its western part (1911–1914); Oubanghi-Chari-Tchad [part of French Equatorial Africa] [reoccupied by France] (1914–1920); Oubanghi-Chari [autonomous unit, separated from Tchad] (1920); Oubanghi-Chari [part of French Equatorial Africa] (1920–1946); Oubanghi-Chari [overseas territory of the French Union] (1946–1958); Central African Republic [self-rule within the French Community] (1958–1960); Central African Republic [independent state] (1960–1976); Central African Empire (1976–1979); Central African Republic (1979–).

2.1.3 Chad (109)

_Coded_: 1920–

2.1.4 Democratic Republic of the Congo (111)

_Coded_: 1900–

_History:_ Congo Free State [property of King Leopold of Belgium] (1900–1908); Belgian colony of Belgian Congo (1908–1960); Republic of Congo [independent state] [also known as Congo-Leopoldville] (1960–1965); Democratic Republic of Congo (1965–1971); Republic of Zaire (1971–1997); Democratic Republic of the Congo (1997–).

2.1.5 Equatorial Guinea (160)

_Coded_: 1900–

_History:_ Colony of Rio Muni, Colony of Ebney, Annobon and Corisco, and Island of Bioko [autonomous from one another] [under Spanish rule] (1900–1926); Colony of Spanish Guinea (1926–1959); Provinces of the Spanish Equatorial Region (1959–1963); Equatorial Guinea [autonomous community] (1963–1968); Republic of Equatorial Guinea [independent state] (1968–).

2.1.6 Gabon (116)

_Coded_: 1910–

_History:_ Gabon under French sphere of influence (1900–1910); Gabon as part of the French Equatorial Africa (1910–1958); Gabon as a member of the Union of Central African Republics (1958–1960); Gabonese Republic [independent state] (1960–).
2.1.7 Republic of the Congo (112)

_Coded_: 1903–

_History_: Middle Congo (1903–1910); Middle Congo as part of the French Equatorial Africa (1910–1934); Middle Congo under direct administration of the governor-general of French Equatorial Africa (1934); Middle Congo as part of the French Equatorial Africa (1934–1958); Middle Congo as a member of the newly formed Union of Central African Republics (1958–1958); Congo Republic as a member of the newly formed Union of Central African Republics (1958–1960); Congo Republic [independent state] (1960); Congo Republic (1960–1970); People’s Republic of the Congo (1970–1991); Republic of the Congo (also known as Congo-Brazzaville) (1991– ).

2.1.8 Sao Tome and Principe (196)

_Coded_: 1900–

_History_: Portuguese colony (1900–1975); Democratic Republic of Sao Tome and Principe [independent state] (1975– ).

2.2 East/Horn of Africa

2.2.1 Burundi (69)

_Coded_: 1916–

_History_: Part of German East Africa (1900–1916); Ruandi-Urundi (1916–1962); Republic of Burundi [independent state] (1962– ).

_Note_: During the Ruandi-Urundi period (1916–1961), this refers to the entire territory, not only the present-day boundaries of Burundi.

2.2.2 Comoros (153)

_Coded_: 1900–1914; 1946–

_History_: French Protectorate of the Comoros (1900–1912); Mayotte and Dependencies (1912–1914); Comoros subordinated to Madagascar (1914–1946); Comoros as a French overseas territory (1946–1975); Union of the Comoros [independent state] (1975– ).

2.2.3 Djibouti (113)

_Coded_: 1900–

2.2.4 Eritrea (115)

_Coded_: 1900–

_History_: Italian colony (1900–1936); Eritrea as a province of Italian East Africa (1936–1941); Eritrea under British occupation [administered under the terms of a UN mandate] (1941–1951); Federation of Ethiopia and Eritrea (1952–1962); Eritrea as a territory within Ethiopia (1962–1993); State of Eritrea [independent state] (1993– ).

_Note_: Coded as a separate unit, even during periods of rule by Italy and Ethiopia.

2.2.5 Ethiopia (38)

_Coded_: 1789–

_Note_: Does not include Harar (1875–1884). Includes Shewa (1889–1920); Eritrea (1952–1993).
2.2.6 Kenya (40)

Coded: 1900–

2.2.7 Malawi (87)

Coded: 1900–

History: British colony of Nyasaland (1900–1953); Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland/Central African Federation [consolidated with Rhodesia (North and South)] (1953–1963); British colony of Nyasaland (1963–1964); Republic of Malawi [independent state] (1964– ).

Note: During the period of the Federation (1953–1963) the Federation as a whole is coded, not just the Nyasaland portion of the Federation.

2.2.8 Mauritius (180)

Coded: 1900–

History: Mauritius as a British colony (1900–1968); Republic of Mauritius [independent state] (1968–).

2.2.9 Rwanda (129)

Coded: 1916–

History: Part of German East Africa (1900–1916); Ruanda-Urundi (1916–1962); Republic of Rwanda [independent state] (1962–).

Note: During the Ruandi-Urundi period, the coding unit includes the entire territory, not simply the present-day boundaries of Rwanda.

2.2.10 Seychelles (199)
